Not illustrated. 1922 Excerpt: .into the World War in 1917, the Surgeon General of the United States called the American Educational Council to New York and by his representatives informed the Council that he had decided to recognize the Council as the authoratative body in Dental Education and asked the Council to make a survey of the colleger and then to classifv them according to the findings of the inspection. The classification to be A, B, and C. The products of the schools in classes A and B would be recognized and the graduates of such institutions would be given a commission in the Army or Navy, while the products of the C class schools would not be recognized and would be compelled to go into the ranks in the draft. This gave the Council the necessary club to enforce its requirements and they immediately proceded to do the...
