The word is not to 1x5 found in, the Advice. The impression is left on the mind of the reader that the ministers indorsed the Salem proceedings, against which, in the principles it sets forth, the whole pajer is an earnest protest. One who brings such charges as the following might, in common justice, have given the profession to which he himself belonged the benefit of allowing the ministers concerned to state their opinions in their own words: The intimate connection of Dr. Mather and other prominent ministers with the witchcraft delusion brought a reproach upon the clergy from which they have not yet recovered. The same observation is repeated in his History, f Mr. Quincy says: The guilt of the excesses aud horrors consequent on that excitement rests, and ought to rest, heavily upon the leading divines and politicians of the colony at that period. There was nothing in Cotton Mather s connection with those excesses and horrors for which any clergyman need hang his head. The ministers advice will be further noticed presently. Cotton Mather believed that devils were concerned in the proceedings at Salem. If this be superstition, he was very superstitious. But not a single person who held the faith of the Christian Church at that day can be named who had any other belief. Calef, Brattle, and Pike, who are accredited by Mr. Upham with superior intelligence in opposing the Salem delusion, fully indorsed the popular theory...
