These druggists point out that American manufacturers are not producing any dyestuff to speak of. Germany in former years has supplied all domestic needs, they say. Since the war, with no imports, the supply has been dwindling until manufacturers in the United States have been compelled to get their dye supplies from any source possible, and this condition now is reflected in Indiana. The present purchasing campaign is to be the final effort of manufacturers to meet the demand for dress goods and other cloth material of former standard colors, the Indianapolis druggists believe. It is rumored that the Edward Collins drug store, in East Lincoln avenue, Goshen. Ind., will close soon. Mr. Collins says he is undecided as yet whether to discontinue his store. Poor business is given as the cause for the probable action. Several druggists of...
