History, condensed 3.00 Natural Philosophy 6.00 English Grammar 5.00 Slate and Type 5.50 Writing Tablet, etc 2.50 Mr. William B. Wait, the able superintendent of the New York Institution of the Blind, in the forty-second annual report of that institution, says: An institution for the blind, is necessarily more complex in its organization than any other establishment, whether educational or otherwise. Each of its three departments of instruction--literary, musical and industrial--is a school in and of itself. Pupils, teachers and employees, being resident, constitute a large family, the wants of which are numerous, varied and incessant. The purchase of groceries, provisions, dry goods and materials of various kinds at fair prices; the proper distribution and use of the same; the keeping of systematic and thorough books of accounts; the making and repairing of clothing; the maintenance of discipline; the care of the sick; the securing of prompt and faithful discharge of duty, are all the subjects of daily consideration. Owing to the number and variety of branches in which the blind must be instructed, and for other causes, the amount of space which is required in the building, is probably twice as great as is required in the building for the care and education of a like number of sighted children of any other class. For the same reason and also owing to their inability to help themselves, the working force required for the school, household and general...
